SOUTH AFRICA LANDSCAPES

I stay in a small artsy town in the Western Cape near Cape Town. This is where I started to develop my own style of art and creativity through my lack of formal art training which allowed me to begin my art journey from a "black canvas"

Art is my escape to a blank canvas of creative exploration.

I began painting 15 years ago, starting out on board then moving to canvas using acrylics. With scrapper, pallet knife and a love for South African landscapes I further developed my own style.

55+1 Shades of Grey is the result of years of evolving my art into its own unique style, one that allows me to be as creative as I wish.

I have exhibited my work in Greyton Art Gallery, Greyton Art Walk and most recently I was invited to exhibit in Galeria Gaudi, Madrid.

The uniqueness of my art comes from my use of pallet knives and scrapers allowing me to apply once off textures adding a layer of authenticity to my works.

" Chris art has become a main stay in Greyton, his unique style and personality are inescapable and his striking use of color almost drips off the canvas demanding multiple views, A real treat for the eyes. "

The reaction my art receives inspires me to keep painting, grow creatively and improve my scraper and pallet knife technique.

Having started using paintbrushes I have since moved onto mostly using scraper's and pallet knife's allowing for more tactile textures and visual appeal incorporating a bold

and distinctive palette and shades.

Painting of doors is a trademark of mine seeing it as a "door" to creative expresion.

Landscapes, specifically South Africa landscapes let my mind escape to the beauty and splendor of the country side.

My new uniquely art collection named 55+1 shades of grey is a direct result of my life and different layers of thought. Shades of grey and the dash of RED, the +1 also highlights my belief that there is HOPE in life that HE provides.
